Description:

The Nathan Shaw House was previously surveyed in 1976 by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Since the time of the previous survey, the property is unaltered.

National Register Evaluation:

The Nathan Shaw House, constructed circa 1870, was previously surveyed by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission in 1976. The property is not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. The property is not eligible under Criterion A, as research conducted indicates no association with any historic events or trends significant in the development of national, state or local history. Although some accounts suggest that the Nathan Shaw House was the miller's house for the Muncaster Mill, no documentation of this association was located. In addition, any association which may have existed has been lost, as no remnants of the mill are extant. Historic research indicates that the property has no association with persons who have made specific contributions to history, and therefore, it does not meet Criterion B. The property is not eligible under Criterion C, as it is an undistinguished example of a late nineteenth century I-house, with poor integrity. Finally, the property has no known potential to yield important information, and therefore, does not meet Criterion D.

Montgomery County, Maryland

The Nathan Shaw House, also known as the Muncaster Miller's House, is a two-story, three-bay frame T-house situated atop a knoll at the corner of Muncaster Mill Road and Emory Lane, near Norbeck in Montgomery County. The house was historically used as a miller's residence, there being several mills along the nearby North Branch of Rock Creek. Although the house may incorporate the foundations of earlier buildings on the site, the present structure dates to circa 1879. Also, included on this site, adjacent to the house is a carriage house and a barn.

The Nathan Shaw House was constructed by Nathan Shaw, and later sold to William Muncaster, a successful land owner, and grist and saw mill operator in the region. Muncaster did not live at the house, but used the dwelling as a tenant house for his mill operators. The Nathan Shaw House is a two-story, three-bay frame T-house situated atop a knoll at the corner of Muncaster Mill Road and Emory Lane, near Norbeck in Montgomery County. The house was historically used as a miller's residence, there being several mills along the nearby North Branch of Rock Creek. Although the house may incorporate the foundations of earlier buildings on the site, the present structure dates to circa 1879. Also, included on this site, adjacent to the house is a carriage house and a barn.

ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION:

The Nathan Shaw House is a two-story, three-bay T-shaped frame structure built circa 1879.¹ Set upon a rubble stone foundation, it is covered with a cross gable roof, clad with asphalt shingles and has weatherboard walls. The main block of the house measures 31' x 16' and the rear wing measures 17' x 15'. The house has two chimneys--one on the north end of the main block and one on the west end of the rear wing. Between 1935 and 1941, the house and grounds underwent a series of changes that included the addition of a one-story shed roof kitchen on the north side of the house; the conversion of a porch into an enclosed room on the south side of the house; the dismantling of a third chimney which originally stood on the south end of the main block; and the reconstruction of the front porch.

The east elevation is divided into three equal bays with a central entry and porch located on the first story and three windows on the second story. The central entry features a four-paneled wood door and a one-story, one-bay projecting gable roofed porch with a stone millstone used as an entry step. This porch, supported by coupled wood columns and having glazed side walls, was built between 1935 and 1936 to replace the original porch which was in deteriorating condition. The square wood posts of this original porch survive and are stored in the barn. To either side of the central entry are single, 6/6 windows. The second story has three quarter windows, where by the upper sash has 9 panes and the lower sash, three. Above the second story rises a boxed wood cornice and frieze board decorated by raised wood bas-reliefs.

The south end of the main block of the house originally featured an exterior end chimney, which was dismantled after 1938. The two 6/6 windows on the first story and the two three-light awning windows above were installed at this time, having been recovered from an old house in Rockville.² The north end of the main block of the house has a chimney on center of the wall and two three-light awning windows to either side on the first story. The chimney features a rubble stone base and a rebuilt, brick chimney stack.

The rear wing of the house projects from the center of the west wall of the main block of the house and measures 17' x 15'. Like the main block, it is set upon a stone foundation, has weatherboard walls and a roof clad with asphalt shingles. Similar features, including 6/6 windows and a decorated frieze indicate that this rear wing was an original part of the house.

On the north elevation, between the main block of the house and the rear wing is a one-story shed roof kitchen wing. This wing was added in 1935-1936 and sits upon a rubble stone foundation.

The west elevation of the house consists of the end wall of the rear wing and several projections. The end wall of the rear wing features a brick end chimney on center, and no openings, but several gable-roofed projections, including an entry vestibule leading into a pantry/stair, which in turn leads into the kitchen wing addition. The original bulkhead entry, located against this end wall towards the south, has been converted into a coal bin.

The interior of the house was not available for survey.

OUTBUILDINGS:

Two outbuildings--a barn and a carriage house--are located north of the main dwelling.

Barn: The barn is a tall, 1-1/2-story timber frame structure covered with a gable roof, clad with standing seam metal. The walls are covered with weatherboard. The interior of the barn has a ground floor equipment room and four horse stalls, and an upper level loft, accessible from the interior by a ladder stair. The loft reveals the common rafter system and the mortise and tenon joints, pegged at the ridge with large wooden pegs.

Carriage House: the carriage house is a small gable roofed single-bay structure with two side sheds. The shed roof extension to the west is original, while that on the east elevation was added circa 1941 to accommodate a 1941 Oldsmobile which would not fit in the original carriage house.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Nathan Shaw House, also known as the Muncaster Miller's House is located at the intersection of Route 115 and Emory Lane near Norbeck, MD. The dwelling was constructed circa 1879, probably by Nathan Shaw, and later sold to William Muncaster, a successful land owner, and grist and saw mill operator in the region. Muncaster did not live at the house, but used the dwelling as a tenant house for his mill operators. The property meets Criterion C of the Maryland Inventory of Historic Properties as the surviving remnant of a mill complex, a now-obsolete and quickly vanishing building type.

Historic Context

The parcel of land on which the Nathan Shaw House was built was part of the original land tract "Batchellor's Forest."³ In March of 1886, Nathan Shaw sold this parcel of land, the grist mill and the dwelling to William Muncaster.⁴ William Muncaster was a successful land owner in this region, and operated a saw mill. After acquiring these 357 acres of land, William Muncaster continued to operate Nathan Shaw's grist mill and used the dwelling as a tenant house for his mill operators.⁵ After William Muncaster's death, his land was bequeathed to his son, Luther M. Muncaster.⁶

In December, 1924 Luther Muncaster sold the Nathan Shaw House and land to Frank L. Hewitt.⁷ The property changed ownership several times over the next ten years. Finally in 1934, Virginia Title Insurance Company sold the dwelling and 24 acres of land to George D. Murphy.⁸ In January of 1938, due to a default having occurred

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a two-story, frame house, with several wings, that sits atop a knoll at the corner of Rte. 115 & Emory Lane. It has a three-bay main (east) facade with a central door (the front step for the door is one of the old mill-stones from Muncaster's Mill.) Most of the window sash is 6/6, and the siding is of rough-sawn lumber (probably from the mill also.) On the north-end exterior wall is a stove-base chimney. Extending to the west rear of the main house is a two-story wing, with a large (newer) brick chimney on the west end. The outbuildings here include a large frame barn, now covered with tin siding. The rocky knoll here appears to have been disturbed at one time-perhaps for a tannery or similar operation associated with the mill.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Some reports indicate this house is much earlier than it first appears. Mills were operated at this site from the 1770's to the 1920's. At any rate, this house does not appear on maps until Hopkins' 1878 Atlas. It was used as the miller's residence after that date, according to sources such as William Dove, the last miller here. According to some people, there was an old, two-story frame house overlooking the road just SE of here.
